

New Managing Director for SCHADE Lagertechnik, AUMUND Group

Dr Jan Weckes was appointed Managing Director of SCHADE Lagertechnik GmbH, Gelsenkirchen, Germany.

Jan Weckes sees SCHADE Lagertechnik as a landmark in his professional development. In making the decision to take on the leadership of this internationally renowned business, he recognised the opportunity to expand on his passion for sophisticated technology.

Previously, at IAS GmbH, an international technology leader in the construction of induction furnaces, and member of the SMS Group, Jan had taken responsibility for strengthening order intake and expanding strategic teamwork within the group of companies. During his tenure at MBE Coal & Minerals Technology he was responsible for developing its global sales and marketing activities. In both of these positions there was an equally important emphasis on new equipment and service business. Jan gathered experience in the industries and markets relevant to SCHADE products and services when he was on international assignments with Outotec GmbH.

Dr Jan Weckes is now consolidating his many years of experience into this new challenge, saying "SCHADE Lagertechnik is one of the international leaders in bulk materials stockyards and blending beds. The company has a long and distinguished history and is internationally recognised as a specialist in storage technology. I intend to build on this success, and continue to grow the business. A multitude of innovations, tailor-made technology based on sustainability, and a network of experts in sales and service, are three important pillars which will support this growth. I am very much looking forward to contributing my commitment and experience to the international SCHADE team."

About the AUMUND Group

The AUMUND Group is one of the experts in the field of bulk handling. Their technically mature, innovative solutions can be seamlessly integrated into almost any customer and site situation. The AUMUND equipment for the safe transport of hot, abrasive material or for optimized cooling of the transported material, the sophisticated storage and blending bed technology as well as mobile loading and unloading systems make the companies recognized market leaders in demanding industries. At the same time, this makes the AUMUND companies reliable partners for plant manufacturers and plant operators - be it for the construction of new plants, conversions or even modernizations. Three production sites with engineering and R&D capacities, an in-house spare parts production, international service companies, warehouse locations, service centers and worldwide sales locations ensure plant availability for customers worldwide - while at the same time conserving resources.
